Human factors for the design, operation, and maintenance of mining equipment

Langland's constantly revisionary poetics in its very nature violates most twentieth-century notions of poetry as pristine and controlled, but invites consideration of other traditions, such as a poetic version of the evangelically rooted idea of 'taking no thought for the morrow' embodied in Langland's Recklessness and 'patient poverty. Evans reviews Pocas veces lo que mostraba el espejo era posible, pero a veces los deseos de las personas, lo que les hace felices, son simples.
